CAPTAIN GENERAL NARROWLY ESCAPES

Trap Laid for the Spaniard Which Would Have Destroyed His Whole Army—Maceo's Message to His People in This Country.

New York, November 26.—The Sun's Jacksonville, Fla., special says:

"Colonel Jose Reyes, aide-de-camp of General Maceo, wounded and en route to New York for medical treatment and with dispatches to the junta, passed through here yesterday, bringing news of a character which has made all Cubans rejoice. There has been fierce fighting in the Rubio hills of Pinar del Rio. In fact, the most sanguinary battle of the war has been fought, and though Weyler's censor at Havana has toned down the reports into mere scrimmages, about 2,000 of Weyler's men were killed in two days and twice as many wounded.

"Weyler went into the field with 25,000 men, in three columns, one of 15,000 under himself and of 10,000 under General Echague, and a third of 10,000 under General Munoz. They found General Maceo entrenched in a crescent-shaped range of hills, and to General Munoz was assigned the duty of routing him from this position, while General Echague was to execute a flank movement and cut off Maceo's retreat.

"General Munoz arranged his battalions and gallantly went forth upon the field, but when at the foot of the hills the Spaniards were met with a withering fire that cut gaps in their ranks. Maceo's men shot from behind rocks and trees, and gradually gave way before the Spaniards, who, encouraged by what they thought to be victory, hotly pursued.

"Like the Petersburg Crater. Suddenly a deafening explosion rent the air and a scene followed somewhat like the mine horror at Petersburg during the civil war. Horses and men were blown high in the air and fell to the earth dead and mangled. The dynamite mine was touched off by John Linn, formerly of this city, who is Maceo's electrician.

"In the mine explosion Colonel Reyes says that Weyler lost 700 men killed and 600 more in the charge that followed, besides 1,600 wounded.

"Next day Maceo, knowing of the reserve force under Weyler, retreated to even a stronger position. There he was attacked by a column under Echague, who was roundly thrashed and driven from the field, losing 800 men killed besides 1,200 wounded.

"In this fight Echague lost a leg, which was torn off by a dynamite bomb. His men became panic-stricken. They fled another mine, and would not respond when a second time urged to the attack. Next day Maceo retreated again, maneuvering all the while to entrap Weyler into a field that had been honeycombed with dynamite under direction of John Linn. Meanwhile, however, Weyler heard that there was danger of an uprising in Havana because of his failure to crush Maceo, and hastened back to that city.

"Colonel Reyes brought a letter for prominent Cubans here from Maceo saying: 'Have no fear. I am like a turtle in his shell. If they get into my shell, God help them.'"

Prevents the Landing of Provisions for the Insurgents.

Philadelphia, November 26.—The scarcity of food in Havana is said to have become a serious matter, and vessels are carefully watched by the Spanish customs officers to see that nothing is taken ashore from the vessels in the harbor, but small quantities of the necessities of life are frequently given to the horde of hungry persons who swarm along the wharves and ask for something to eat. The British steamer Aramora, which just arrived at this port from Havana, had an unpleasant experience with the Spanish officials while there discharging her cargo. In some way a lot of small things, like coffee and sugar, were given to the horde of food by some of the crew of the vessel, and it became rumored about the harbor that supplies for the insurgents were being slipped over the vessel's side surreptitiously and were being carried into the interior.

Captain Davey, the commander of the Aramora, was summoned before the captain of the port and informed that he had been fined for having violated the customs laws of Cuba. Despite his protests that it was done through his knowledge or consent, the Spaniards were inexorable and the engines were compelled to give security before the vessel's release could be secured. Since the vessel's release could be secured, the fine has been increased on the ground that the Spaniards claim to have newly discovered evidence showing that more goods had been landed than was at first Auburn Footballists Defeated in the Annual Game.

THOUSANDS WATCH CONTEST

Athens Men Score 12 Points, Auburn-Hes Only 6.

GAME EXCITING FROM START TO FINISH

Holiday Crowds Packed Every Seat in Brisbane Park—Many Visitors From All Parts of the State Watched the Interesting Struggle.

The University of Georgia won the great annual Thanksgiving day football match, defeating Auburn by a score of 12 to 6.

It was unquestionably the best exhibition of scientific football playing ever seen in the south. The Alabamians contested every inch of ground and worked with splendid spirit in face of defeat. With the score 12 to 0 the Alabamians played better ball than when the score was 0 to 0. The Georgians played with real old-fashioned Georgia grit. They went into the game determined to win, and they did it.

Between 8,000 and 10,000 witnessed the battle. It was the largest and most enthusiastic throng of spectators that ever witnessed an athletic contest south of Mason and Dixon's line.

There were few accidents and no injuries of a serious character. The game was played in sportsman-like style, and victors and losers came off of the contest without bitterness toward their rivals.

'T WAS A NOBLE VICTORY.

The Two Best Football Eleven in the South Tested Their Muscle on the Gridiron Yesterday.

For the fourth time the Georgia and Alabama football champions have met in an annual Thanksgiving Day game before an Atlanta audience.

Twice have the Auburn men won; for the second time have the colors of the University of Georgia waved in triumph. With precise regularity, the two teams have alternated in their victories. First the Alabamians triumphed. That was in 1892. Then there was an intermission of two years when the teams did not meet. The trustees of the Georgia university prohibited the game at that institution for two years. Auburn faculty have always encouraged athletics, and every year since 1892 the Alabamians have turned out a star team. In 1894 the Georgians were again allowed to compete with their old-time rivals, and they won a brilliant victory. The following year, 1895, Auburn was again the victor, and this year the Georgia men nailed another victorious flag to their masthead and evened things up with their rivals.

Of all four games, yesterday's was certainly the best played, the most scientific, the most exciting. For twenty minutes of the first half it was anybody's game. The ball vacillated from one part of the field to the other, but never approached the danger line toward either team's goal. Then the Georgians took the start, and gave the best exhibition of football playing that has ever been seen in this part of the country.

A series of consecutive plays were sprung on the Alabamians that took them completely by surprise. For twenty minutes the play had been romping up and down the field, first in Georgia's territory and then in Alabama's.

Alabama appeared to have caught on to the Georgians' signals. Every time Captain Nally gave a signal, Captain Tichenor would call out to his men the trick the Georgians were about to play. In this way Alabama was stopping the progress of the Georgia eleven, ordered a series of plays which are played as fast as the men can line up without any signals whatever. Every man on the Georgia eleven knew just what play was to be put in practice. Without a word they hammered into Alabama's line, skirted around Alabama's ends, bucked between Alabama's guard and tackle and carried the ball eight and ten yards at a time toward Auburn's goal. The Georgians were on Auburn's twenty-five-yard line when this scheme was resorted to. Without a loss, they plunged headlong into their opponents and carried the oval clean across Auburn's goal line.

Five thousand Georgia rovers threw their hats into the air and yelled like mad. The colors of the thousands who were cheering for Auburn were temporarily brought down and the red-and-black flags and ribbons tied to thousands of canes and umbrellas waved and fluttered above the heads of the Georgia masses. The scene when the lads from Athens scored the first points in the game was indescribable. Old graduates who studied in the classic halls of the university became young again. They fairly danced for joy in their college days. They yelled the Georgia "Rah! Rah! Rah!" with as much enthusiasm as the youngest freshman.

Georgians were satisfied after that splendid exhibition of the ability of their gridiron representatives, and watched through the game with less uneasiness over the outcome. When Georgia rolled up another score without a single touchdown to the Alabamians' credit, the Alabamians roared as blue as their colors, and the Georgians flaunted their red-and-black banners in the joy of triumph.

Ex-Governor Agrees With His Associates That Qualifies It Very Clearly.

Chicago, November 26.—Special from Kansas City, Mo., says something of a stir was created among the gold standard democrats here last night by reading of a spirited letter from D. B. Francis, secretary of the interior, at a banquet held in celebration of the recent defeat of free silver. After referring to the result of the recent election and declaring that, in his opinion, it settled the financial question at least until the existing standard shall have been given a fair and thorough trial, Secretary Francis said:

"While I agree with advocates of 'sound money' in the fight recently made, there are many principles advocated by some of those who have been advocates of that cause to which I cannot subscribe. If some legislation is not enacted to check the growing influence of wealth and circumscribe the power of trusts and monopolies, there will be an uprising of the people before the century closes which will endanger our institutions.

CABINET PLACE FOR THE SOUTH

Major McKinley Will Be Asked To Give Texas a Place.

Dallas, Tex., November 26.—Letters were today sent to all southern members of the republican national executive committee and to the various state chairmen, requesting their co-operation in the preparation of a mammoth petition covering the entire south, to be presented to Major McKinley personally by a delegation of southern republicans, urging that Hon. John Grant, national committeeman and ex-state chairman of Texas, be appointed to the cabinet.

The letters state that never since Garfield's term has the south been represented in a republican cabinet; that the republican voters of the south urge their claim for cabinet representation; that the republican vote of Texas increased from 51,000 for Harrison in 1888 to 171,000 for McKinley in 1896, and that recognition of the south will mean a largely increased republican vote in the future.

"The cardinals who will receive the red hat on December 3d are Satolli, Jacobini, Agliardi, Nerrata and Di Pietro, who were absent from Rome at the time of their appointment.

"In addition to investing the cardinals already appointed, it is said that the pope will confer the honor of the cardinalate upon two other distinguished ecclesiastics. The first of these is P. He was strapped in the chair exactly as a man would be and the hair shaved from his body where the electrodes were ap-

Chattanooga, Tenn., November 26.—(Special.)—Just as Rev. E. G. Mitchell, who preached the union Thanksgiving sermon today at the First Baptist church, pronounced the last words of the benediction, dismissing the congregation, Mr. G. W. Mr. Nelson was at one time connected with the leading music house of Winters & Nelson.

Florida Crowd Hanged a Negro Who Is Charged With Arson.

Gainesville, Fla., November 26.—Alfred Daniels, alias Frank Williams, who, it is alleged, was connected with the burning of J. D. Stringfellow's barn, about five miles west of the city, some few months since, and who was arrested in Jacksonville a few days ago on the charge of arson, was lynched about five miles north of the city about 2 o'clock this morning.

Deputy Sheriff Rives, with the prisoner, was traveling by private conveyance from Waldo and was accompanied by Peter Reynolds and a colored lad about fourteen years old, when guns were stuck in their faces and they were ordered to stop.

Part of the mob still held the deputy and driver covered with guns while the others succeeded in pulling the prisoner from the carriage, and after ordering the driver to make tracks, they took the negro to a nearby tree and hanged him.

Deputy Rives could not describe any of the mob, as it was very dark and he said they looked as if their faces had been blackened.

Three vessels were injured.

share lots a little under the market.
The company's brokers bought 3,000 shares from him. Mr. Hampton then endeavored to obtain the stock on delivery by subscribing
in the names of his clerks for 3,000 shares.
The directors of the company determined to punish him. They sent letters of regret to all of the public subscribers and allotted the shares to themselves and their friends. Mr. Stoneham found it impossible to obtain the stock to complete his bargain at any but prohibitive figures. It would cost him $4,000,000 to get 3,000 shares at to-the market are now endeavoring to rig

the stock exchange. Mr. Stoneham offers for $1,000,000 cash. Mr. Stoneham offers appointed next Monday for settlement,

but they have now postponed it indefinitely.
Mr. Stoneham is now in the law and has begun a prosecution against his persecutors for conspiracy. The chances are that the matter will be compromised.

MODEL WRECKS A STUDIO.
JEALOUS WOMAN DESTROYS THE
WORK OF SCULPTOR ALDEN.

Enraged Because a Society Girl Poses
for a Head of Judith—Smashes
the Sculptor's Work.

New York, November 26.—A Judith in clay, a splendid image of sanguinary and voluptuous, was found yesterday in the studio of a sculptor. The statue's creator was Charles E. Alden, an impressionist, thirty-two years old. The destroyer of this Judith was a society girl, the daughter of a wealthy family, who whom art is not impersonal. She was happy, sought after, almost wealthy, when she came to New York as a model for a time when she had more resource than the charity hospital. Then Alden, in gratitude for noble work, took care of her and employed her to model
at his bedside at night and a cook to feed
her by day.

When she had been saved from the verge of death by home again and the return to her work as a model employed by Ward, Partridge, St. Gaudens and others, but she came to New York as a model for Alden's studio and sat in a corner, content to be there unnoticed, even when he was engaged with other models, for he treated her with indifference.

Alden was naively unconscious of the fact that having never expressed the slightest affection for a woman, whom he respected from afar, and death in whose company he lived every day, he had made
of her a mortal enemy.

Next in the scale of luxuries is tobacco, though some very wise and honest men maintain that it is one of the necessities of life. The average smoker will take that view of it. The figure of $20,000,000 is agreed upon as approximately correct by manufacturers and experts in the trade. It may be subdivided in this wise: Cigars, $17,000,000; pipe-tobacco, $9,000,000; smoking tobacco, $3,000,000, and chewing tobacco, $1,000,000.

There is but scant inducement to the purchase of trotters in New York. There is no place to trot them. Some day there will be a speedway on the banks of the Harlem; some day we will see it but notwithstanding the fact that most fourth and fifth class towns have more true speedways than can be found within the limits of the Greater New York, the annual sales of high-bred roadsters, trotters and pacers
and thoroughbred saddle horses, averages,
according to the testimony of the veteran
William Baston, $4,000,000 annually.

The traffic in carriage horses and pleasure vehicles of all sorts aggregates twice this amount, and the harness makers, feed dealers, groomers, trainers, coachmen, footmen
and stable boys swell the total of expenditure to $10,000,000.

The annual sales of diamonds and jewelry have been known to reach $30,000,000
in a single year, but that was in the good old times of which we hear so much, and but did not appreciate at the time. A conservative estimate by Maiden Lane and upper Broadway dealers places the local sales at $20,000,000.

The complaint of the socialist agitator that the American makes his money at home and spends it in Europe is partially borne out by the figures. The sales of steamship tickets at this port alone amount to $4,000,000 annually. The agent of one of the oldest trans-Atlantic lines states that at least 75 per cent of the amount is sold to citizens of New York who go abroad for pleasure. The amount of money taken out of New York for this purpose alone is conservatively estimated at $20,000,000.

There will be sold in the Greater New York during the next year not less than 125,000 bicycles, which may be averaged at $60 each, and there is a cool $7,500,000 more.
New Yorkers are a theater going lot as it shown by the fact that full $6,000,000 is annually passed to the box offices of the places of amusement, in which this city abounds as does no other city in the world.

New York makes her fortune on all festal occasions and all social functions. The more out of season the flower, the more imperatively does New York demand it, and for the gratification of the city's taste
and appetites she pays every year a round $2,000,000.

New York, November 26.—A special cable
dispatch to The Herald from Caracas, Venezuela, says:

What Will Become of the Freak?
From The Cincinnati Enquirer.
Some extreme mugwump seem anxious to have Eckels retained under the new ad-

They try to argue that he is un-

Still, if he has the manhood of a field
mouse, his resignation will be on President McKinley's desk almost as soon as the resignation of the cabinet officers. Mr. Eckbosses in the matter of the "banquet" and "banquets" that prosperity was going to come immediately as a result of Clevebed. Happily, a good deal emanates from sources usually credited with conservative if not always correct views on the subject. The following quotations clearly bespeak that personal interest has prompted the writer to write. "I can't hold your wheat" variety, who others are purely speculative or show the writer's chronic pessimism and the equally chronic optimism of the other. The result being that the inquirer as to the wheat situation developments, the writer is left with a tangled mass of bewildering tangle, from which he escapes only by the aid of a "good deal" of what has learned from one source of information that the wheat crop at home is to be under $400,000,000 bushels, and that the crop abroad will be at least $250,000,000, from still another source, that the crop abroad will be $300,000,000 bushels, and that the crop at home, that it cannot possibly be less than $400,000 bushels.

The wheat situation abroad which have led to the rise in prices and our consideration of the wheat situation abroad are still more conflicting. According to some they ought to bring about an immediate drop in prices, while others say that wheat to a dollar a bushel, to be followed shortly by a drop to 80 cents. The price might stop there, but even that is doubtful, say

On the other side of the question it is just as confidently predicted that no great increase in the production of wheat is probable outside of fluctuations, or individual crops, which may be exceptional. This is, perhaps, the ultra-conservative opinion, the opinion of those who see in the future of wheat a continuation of the much higher price, a stimulus given to the production of wheat, and a price higher than wheat. These have on their side of the argument the large corn crop and the fact that the price of wheat is higher than corn meal, and also the knowledge that when a certain limit in wheat consumption, followed by further contraction if the quantity is not increased, is reached.

Such facts as these, unfortunately do not receive consideration in the present inquiry, but conditions should lead them into the fullest inquiry, but acceptance of the present conditions, and the average consumption they add to these what they know, and make calculations which can rarely or never come out right.

The writer of a long letter to the Cincinnati Price Current, after reminding us that it is a fact that wheat is not a staple crop, professes to see in the developments of the present year a stimulus to wheat for wheat in the next six months. This is "almost certain to materialize," he says, "because of the fact that the price of wheat is so high."

This authority then proceeds: "The confidence has all along been the basis of the improvement in values; the failure of the wheat crop has not been sufficient to strengthen the position and caused a rapid jump to a higher level than otherwise would have been the case. The figure we have to remember on the subject is that the wheat crop for the next crop (to be harvested next month) may check any exaggerated ideas as to prices of wheat, and the fact that the production of the autumn-sown crops in Russia, France, and above all, the Indian Empire."

Dornbush says: "The present situation of the wheat market is one of extreme speculation. Stocks for the time of year are very low, and the demand for wheat in autumn sowing in the United Kingdom and France are in arrears, but the situation is so complicated that it is difficult to be ascertained. The season, at present uncertain, is likely to present fluctuations which would favor a speculative and active and observant trader."

The writer of the review (Brooklyn) talks in a similar strain, intimating that "the wheat situation is likely to move to a point where the price of wheat will be a fair price of a large supply. Argentine being the main source of supply, and the price to extreme high ranges, these are left for the enthusiast to predict. Moderate advance is probable, but not a great one."

There is no possible doubt but that we have yet to see considerable exports of wheat from this country, and that it is as yet how great the volume will be, and that the greater the volume, the more proportion of the domestic crop of wheat will be met by the demand of rice, corn or other crops. The wheat crop of this country will affect consumption.

One set of facts in the case taken up by the committee is that there is a much higher range of quotations; for, for example, the quotations for No. 1 soft red winter wheat are known and determinable shortage abroad and a large volume for the crop of wheat in the United States, and that the price for rice, corn or other crops for consumption. But one thing is certain, and that is, that any calculations based on those referred to, such as a modification in the estimate of 1,500,000 bushels or so added to the exports of wheat, will be a very poor thing to say anything of the substitution of cheaper breadstuffs than wheat in an emergency which might arise.

Already we are having conflicting reports of what is taking place in India, on the one hand the situation being represented as undergoing improvement on account of rains in the distressed districts, and on

NEW SYSTEM WANTED
County Schools Will Be Made Better and More Efficient in the Future.

TO RATIFY THE SCHOOL BILL
County School Commissioner Guinn Talks Upon the Features of the Measure Just Passed.

County School Commissioner Guinn, aided by the county board of education, has begun an active campaign for a local system of schools for Fulton county.

The legislature has passed the bill, which the governor has signed, providing for the local system in this county, and the election in which the people of the county are to ratify the bill will be held on December 10th, at the same time of the election for the judges of the supreme court.

Since the passage of the bill a great deal of interest has been manifested in it by people living in every part of the county. Many of the most influential citizens in the county and they realize that the establishment of a first-class school system would greatly enhance the value of this property by attracting population to the country and thereby furnishing a market for property for which there is now a decreasing rather than an increasing demand on account of the lack of school facilities offered to residents of the country districts.

Many of this class of citizens, as well as residents of the country districts, have been in communication with Commissioner Guinn and the county board this week, offering to do all in their power to see the bill ratified in the coming election. Commissioner Guinn is himself making a canvass of the county, and everywhere has found the people to be in hearty sympathy with the movement.

The bill proposes to establish in Fulton county a system of schools similar to that now in operation in Bibb, Chatham and other of the most populous counties of the state as well as in some of the smaller ones. In the counties referred to, according to the reports sent out, the result of the local system has been a large increased demand for country and suburban property and the consequent upbuilding of these districts. This has been particularly true in Bibb, where during the past few years, while city property has been on the decline, as shown by the tax digest in the comptroller's office, the outlying districts have steadily advanced. The people moved from the city to the country as soon as they found they had good educational facilities for their children, and the people from other sections of the state have been attracted to these counties by this system of schools.

In fact, the plan has so impressed those who have investigated it that State School Commissioner Glenn, and others who are interested in advancing the educational interests of the state, are now pressing a bill before the legislature providing a general system throughout the state. This bill, which was introduced by Mr. Hardeman, of Newton, requires that each county must raise by local taxation for schools an amount equal to its pro rata share of the common school fund disbursed by the state before it can take advantage of the state school fund. For instance, if this bill becomes law, unless Fulton county ratifies the special act relating to this county, which is to be passed upon at the election next month, Fulton would have to raise by taxation about $20,000, in addition to the present amount, before she could get her part of the state school fund.

The county board of education is particularly anxious to get in ahead of this general law by having the special act ratified. If the general law should become operative in this county, it is believed that the schools provided under it would not be as effective and as satisfactory to this county as those that could be maintained under the special law, for the reason that Fulton would be a part and parcel of a system that would be necessarily formed by all the counties of the state. On the other hand, under her own law she could adopt any course of study, lengthen the term or change the general plan of her schools to suit herself without being governed by the regulations of the state. The county school system would be just as independent of the state as the city schools now are. The only connection with the state department would be the receipt of the regular pro rata share of the state school fund, which would be added to the amount raised by the local taxation law and used for the support of the new system.

"The question of better schools," said County School Commissioner Guinn, yesterday, "is one in which every man, woman and child in Fulton county is interested. If anything, Fulton is more interested in having good schools than any other county in the state, although there are a number of less important counties which have far better schools than ours, owing to the adoption of plans similar to that which we have now provided for. Fulton is the seat of the state capital, it is the most populous county in the state and the wealthiest, and the people of the county would be more attracted to it than to any other county, and for these reasons, as well as many others, as a general proposition, the county ought to have the best school system in the state."

"As a question of individual interest the improvement of our county schools ought to receive, and I am glad to see is receiving, the hearty support and encouragement of many of the most influential citizens."

"With a first-class system of schools in the county we would find a rapid upbuilding in the country districts. People who now live in the city for the sake of educating their children would become residents of the country. They would buy homes there and thus create a demand for property that is now idle and non-productive to the owners. Every part of the county is fertile, well situated and healthy, and the only thing lacking to make it a highly desirable locality for a rural population engaged in truck farming and the like, as well as for homes of the people who do business in the city, but would like to live out, both because homes could be bought more cheaply and for other advantages of country life, is a system of schools that will meet the demands of the times. Atlanta is a fine market, and the car lines that run into every nook and cranny in the county make almost every acre of ground available if the people were only willing to go out in the country to live. My observation and the experience of other counties is that the only thing that prevents the upbuilding of the rural community is that the lack of schools in which their children can be properly educated keeps people in the cities."

"Besides, it has long since been demonstrated that with the same facilities much better school work can be done in the country than in the cities. There is something in nature that inspires and ennobles the mind of the child surrounded by woods and fields; he is more susceptible to correct education under such surroundings than when forced to look always upon paved streets and brick walls and be restricted to the narrow confines of a town school yard."

"But," continued Commissioner Guinn, "to get down to the practical side of the question. Our board has determined to put forth every effort to advance the standard of our county schools. To succeed we must have the support of public sentiment by the ratification of the bill which will be submitted to the people on December 10th. "When we take into consideration that our present term is only five months long, and that for these five months the salaries of the teachers will not average over $40 a month, aggregating $200 a year, it is at once evident that we must have more money if there is to be any substantial improvement in the system. We cannot expect anything much better than the schools of the past unless there is an addition to the funds at our command. We cannot expect to secure for $20 a year that class of service which should bring about the proper mental and moral development of the children in the schools. As a matter of fact, no self-respecting, highly qualified teacher can afford to work for $40 a month for five months in the year. If now and then competent teachers have done this work for this money, they have been largely influenced by philanthropic motives, and I will say that we have some teachers who do give us this service. Their work is good, but it is not fair to require of them such labor at so small a price. We must have not only better teachers, but better schoolhouses to make the schools of Fulton county what they should be, and to get them there must be money, which can only be placed at the command of our board by the passage of this bill.

"If the people of the county ratify the bill which the legislature has passed at the request of our board, we will in a very short time offer educational facilities to the residents of the county that will be equal to those found in the rural districts of any state, and as I have said, from contact with people so far, I believe that the sentiment is almost unanimous in our favor. The only trouble will be in getting out the voters. The law requires the bill to be ratified by two-thirds of the registered voters in the last election. This registration was very heavy, and it is, therefore, necessary that everybody who can do so shall come out and vote on election day.

"As to the additional tax that would be levied in event of the ratification of the bill, the board estimates that it will be about $1.50 on the $1,000, which is a very light burden to be borne upon the advantages of the system are taken into consideration. In fact, it is much less than the increased tax would be if Fulton county had to establish her county schools in conformity with the general local schools tax bill now pending before the general assembly and which is likely to pass."

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed "Perfection."

A Good Opening.
